TVI Camera Privacy Policy

Effective November 1, 2016

TVI Camera is the easiest way to start or watch a live video broadcast. TVI Camera is one of the Services covered by the TVI Privacy Policy, which describes how we treat your information when you use our products and services, including TVI Camera. The following describes practices that are specific to TVI Camera.

TVI Camera is designed to help you broadcast video publicly all around the world.

When you broadcast a video, your broadcast is public by default. This includes the metadata provided with your broadcast, such as when and where you broadcast. When you watch others' broadcasts, information regarding when you watched the video (for example, either live or on replay) and any comments or stars you make on the video is also public. We provide you with tools to save and delete your broadcasts.

You do need to have a Twitter account to broadcast video and to receive broadcasts.

If you choose to create or update an account, you may provide some personal information, such as your profile information. Your profile information on TVI Camera is publicly available and includes your name, username, TVI username (if applicable), biography information, profile picture, the people you follow and who follows you, and the number of stars you have received.

We use and store information about your location to provide features of our Services, such as broadcasting with your location, and to improve and customize the Services. We may infer your location based on information from your device. If you have turned on location services for TVI Camera, we may share your precise location.

We may revise this Privacy Statement from time to time. The most current version of this Statement will always be at http://www.tvi.com/privacytvicamera.pdf.

For more information or if you have specific questions about our Privacy Policy, please contact the Company any time at support@tvi.com.
